Built for people who just want to learn.

Principles over memorisation

Understand why a design works, not just how to recreate one.

Systems thinking

Learn to reason about how parts of a system affect each other.

Grounded in real problems

Every lesson is built around a problem worth solving, not an abstract exercise.

[FAQ]

Honest answers to the small stuff.

What kind of engineering is covered?

A broad mix of mechanical, systems and process fundamentals, with more added regularly.

Do I need a technical degree?

No — lessons are built to be approachable, with more depth available for those who want it.

Is this useful for students?

Yes, many lessons complement formal study with a more practical, plain-language explanation.

Will advanced topics be added?

Yes, the track expands over time based on what learners ask for most.
